TIME FOR TONOPAH TO THINK.

WHILE a great many citizens of Tonopah have profited liberally from the advance in Goldfield stocks they should not lose sight of the fact that they are sleeping at the switch and the train of prosperity is likely to be derailed through their own negligence. With the knowledge that gold mines are in demand and aware to the fact that there is an abundance of capital for the development of gold prospects they should not sit around the brokers' offices rolling cigarettes and repining over the decline of silver. There is something more commendable to do. There is a man's job before Tonopah and no one should shirk the responsibility. This is the time and place for making another gold camp which will equal the best. Five score miners have spent the better part of the last ninety days prospecting claims within sight of Tonopah and now have reached the point where they have exhausted their funds and cannot sink any deeper without material assistance. These men are practical miners familiar with formations and geological conditions, and their judgment may be relied on. They are confident the new camp of Tonopah is a rich producer in the making and they are equally certain that with deep work the district will be brought into a state of production rivaling the gold camp on the south of Tonopah. The indications and formations are all analogous to those which marked the inception of Goldfield. All that is required is the nerve to go ahead and hazard a few dollars on the prospect of the camp making good. Some time ago the Bonanza suggested the expediency of Tonopah business men getting together with an organization to furnish funds for the men who risked their savings in the hope of catching pay ore close to the surface. It is more than probable that enrichment will come with depth and depth can only be reached by the contributions of those most directly interested in the welfare of Tonopah.

The example of Goldfield is an admirable one to emulate at this time. Through eight lean years the men of that camp struggled against overwhelming odds only to emerge from the deepest gloom into the spotlight of prosperity. Tonopah has had prosperity thrust on it and conditions are ripe for doing something to help out the depression in silver. Since the world is evincing an insatiable appetite for gold it is up to the men of Tonopah to gratify this demand by doing their best to develop the gold resources reposing in their backyard for lack of capital.

THE PRICE OF PEACE.

IN these piping times of peace and industrial depression it is well for the plain citizen of the United States to watch his ps and qs with the dawn of a bright December morn when he will begin to suffer the privations imposed by a Democratic administration through the levying of a war tax to sustain the only large nation on earth which is not involved in war. Tomorrow everybody will have to pay for everything an additional fraction of a penny or more. If he transmits a telephone message he will have to supply a stamp. If he wishes to send a telegram he must supply a stamp. If he procures an insurance policy to protect his modest home from the ravages of fire he must supply a stamp. So on ad infinitum. The extravagance of a costly administration whose maintenance calls for the outlay of a billion and a quarter dollars per annum must be met by the poor people and the cost of living jacked up another peg. The administration has not taken any action towards economizing except to suggest that at some remote period the country may be administered on a more economical basis. This, according to an official outline of the president's forthcoming message, will be left to a commission and reform may follow in a century. As an illustration of the wastefulness of the administration it may be mentioned that at Ellis Island, with facilities for handling tens of thousands of immigrants daily, there has been no reduction of the federal force of employees, although the arrivals are not averaging 200 a day. The custom house, where the greatest falling off in revenue is reported, maintains the same costly machinery as during the boom days when imports kept the officials busy late into the night. The printing office of the government continues to turn out thousands of tons of useless printed matter that serve the simple purpose of furnishing employment to hundreds whose salaries must be paid by the man out of work and the man who has saved during the era of prosperity that he might have enough to tide him over the days of depression. The lesson taught by these plain people is lost on the administration which never thinks of lopping off a dollar where a dollar could be saved without impairing the efficiency of the government.

This is the time for economy and not a year hence when the country has worked out its own salvation by sweating blood to pay taxes.

The old guard was never known to surrender and the Democrats of Nevada are as fond of the fleshpots of office as the ancient Israelites who looked with hungry eyes on the good things of Egypt. The Democracy aims to control the legislature and are preparing to effect a reversal of the will of the voters at any cost. Before going too far they should be sure of their premises that they make no mistake in their reckoning. Any recount may entail disaster to the wreckers of prosperity and return a few more good Republican business men to office.

The lid is on in the region of unpronounceable names in Russia and eastern Prussia where the world is informed there has been a decisive battle adverse to the Germans. Russia is not furnishing particulars and Germany won't, so it is a safe bet that the Kaiser is not exulting over the end of the world's greatest war as he was a week ago.

When the stagnation caused by war will disappear the American people will be prosperous. This is good dope for the man with the empty dinner pail who does not know where the next meal is coming from.

"Live horse and you'll get oats" is the advice of Washington to the man without a job.

ORO COMPANY IS IS SOON TO RESUME

THREE SHIFTS OF MINERS WILL BE EMPLOYED IN THE FUTURE.

After a practical shut-down of six weeks, the Goldfield Oro Mining company will Monday resume operations with three shifts of miners. This announcement was made Thursday night by Manager Thomas F. Manning. During the present close-down a sufficient force of miners has been kept on the payroll to keep the workings on the various levels in good condition and the 835-foot shaft free of water.

Manager Manning further stated that, following the resumption, operations on the 700 and 800-foot levels will be pushed with all possible vigor. On the 800-foot level, drifts north and south have been extended on the vein. From a point about forty feet from the shaft the north drift has been advanced a distance of approximately 100 feet on two to four feet of quartz carrying seams yielding values of from $5 to $20 a ton in gold, silver and copper. To the south encouraging values have also been exposed. On the 700-foot level the west crosscut, already out a distance of more than seventy feet, will be extended to intercept the upward extension of the vein.—Tribune.
